Introduction

With the class “Understanding China, 1700-2000: A Data-Analytic Approach”, its purpose was to summarize some of the new directions in Chinese history and Chinese social science during the last two decades.

The one-week intensive program comprised morning interactive classes with UST students and afternoon group outings. The participants learned the development of China along different era and understand its country modernization. During the site visits in Hong Kong, the participants were guided through key revitalization projects of heritage sites and cultural spots. They could witness the success of the city’s effort in conservation of important historic establishments.

The program was open for elite senior undergraduate students and master’s students, nominated by the Association of East Asian Research Universities (AEARU), and also some partner schools of School of Humanities and Social Science, Hong Kong University of Science & Technology.
